CHAPTER XVIII

EXECUTION OF WORKS DEPARTMENTALLY

Preliminary Arrangements:

18. 1.1 Before taking up a work departmentally, it must be ensured that all necessary sanctions exist, that land required is available with the Department and that adequate funds be forthcoming . Each item of the work in the esitmate should be split up into its components of labour and materials and an abstract of the various materials and labour required worked out.

18. 1.2 .A phased programme of construction should then be drawn up showing works to be done during every month. In drawing up this programme all relevant factors affecting progress should be taken into account such as weather conditions, difficulty if any in procuring materials or tools and plants etc. From this programme, the requirement of materials and labour for each month should be worked out in detail. In working out the requirement of labour, the number of persons required trade-wise should be separately estimated.

18 1.3. Arrangements must be completed to get the required support of departmental meterials at least for the first 2 months of construction and standing arrangement must be entered into for the supply of materials during the succeeding months. Where materials are procured through District Stores, sufficient advance intimation should be given to the Assistant Engineer , District Stores concerned to that materials are arranged in time.

18 1.4 Arangements of materials other than those normally supplied by the Stores may be made on the basis of piece-work contracts or on the basis of local quotations.

18 1.5 The requirement of tools and plant including hand tools and implements should also be estmiated and arranged. Normally the artisan like Masons, Carpenters,

LIBRARY ARCHIVES Kerala Legislative Assembly

Stone Masons etc., bring their own tools. Unskilled workers however do not bring any tools. Such tools have to be provided by the Department, and this should be made available before the labour recruited.

18 1.6 A proper store shed and office should be arranged at the site of the work for storing materials and tools and plant etc., on arrival. If labour has to be provided with accommodation, provision for such accommodation for the number required should also be made. Proper water supply, sanitary arrangements and lighting must also be provided. If machinery operated by electric power has to be employed, power supply should also be arranged, stacking yard for materials to be collected and it should be properly levelled, drained and prepared. these works may require a small quantum of labour if arranged departmentally otherwise these preliminary works may also be got done through piece-work contracts.

18 1.7 Concurrently, the requirement of site supervision staff should also be properly estimated and they must be appointed progressively according to requirements as soon as preliminary works in the site are started. Steps should also be taken for appointing watch and ward staff to look after the materials stored at site. If there is no proper access road to site, possibility of opening a temporary access road should be examined and arranged. If, however, this is disproportionately costly, the cheapest form of transporting materials to site should be investigated and arranged. This includes cutting of traces, foot- path; steps etc., as may be found suitable.

18. 2. Recruitement of labour :

18 2.1 After all these preliminaries are over, arrangements should be made for recruiting the required labour. It is not often possible to make the large changes in the labour strength. So, based on the monthly requirements as per phased programme the optimum number of workers that can be employed should be determined and the work should be rephased if necessary so as to keep the optimum number employed to the maximum extent possible within the construction period.

18. 2.2 It is generally advisable to have one or two labour intensive items of work such as earth work to extend throughout the period of construction as this will serve as a reservoir to occasionally draw additional labour for other items of work when required.

18. 2.3 Having detailed the number and type of labour required, steps should be taken for their recruitment. All recruitment for construction works should be on a casual basis. Before recruiting fresh labour, it should be ascertained from the Executive Engineer (B &R) of the District whether available labour can be diverted for this work or not. If so, first preference must be made for such available department labour. Whenever Government have issued priority orders to employ any particular retrenched labour, such priorities should also be taken note of. For the balance requirement the Employment Exchange may be approached.

18. 2.4 Particular care should be taken in regard to recruitment of artisans and skilled worker to see that they possess the necessary skill in the concerned trades. If necessary, suitable tests may be arranged for selecting the required persons. If the required labour is not availbale at Employment Exchange or other Departments, recruitment may be made through open election after advertising this fact. It should be made clear in the advertising that the employment is only a casual nature and is not likely to last more than..... months. If labour is not locally available for recruitment may be done through such places where labour is available. This recruitment if necessary may be arranged though an agent or a commission basis subject to approval of the Executive Engineer.

18 2.5 Each worker on recruitment should be given an employment card as indicated in Form II (Appendix XVII). Such card should be given even to departmental labour transferred from elsewhere. Concurrently, a register of workmen in Form I (Appendix XVII) should also be opened. Items of works should be watched through N.M. Rolls or rolls applicable to seasonal labours as the case may justify.

18 2.6 The above procedure regarding recruitment of labour etc. may be relaxed in the case of urgent works and works of short duration lasting less than one month. In such cases, recruitment may be made in any manner found convenient including engagement of labour supplied by a contractor (see para 313 of K.P.W.A. Code).

18 3. Wages

18 3.1. The wage of each worker may be fixed on the basis of the scale of wages applicable to N.M.R.Workers/ Seasonal labourers. In any category or worker is inlcuded in the above scale of wages then the rate for the category should be fixed on the basis of the fairwages prevailing on the locality but it should on no account be less than the minimum wages if any applicable to the particular category of labour. If there is no fair wage published for the locality, the schedule of rates for the division may be taken as the basis for fixing fair wages.

18. 3.2. If the wage of any particular trade is in the form of running scale, the workmen's wage should be fixed at the lowest point in the running scale. The wages of N.M.R. skilled workers will be paid in accordance with orders of Government issued from time to time.

18 3.3. The question as to whether the worker should be paid every week or month may be decided by Assistant Engineer in consultation with the workmen. The Payment of Wages Act may be referred to regarding conditions of payment.

Note: Even when labour is recruited through a contractor or by an agent, wages should be paid direct to labour and the commission if any should be paid to the contractor or agent.

18 3.4. To ensure that payment of wage is made on the due date all the formalities regarding closing of N.M.R.,

checking and passing and encashment of cheque should be completed with utmost expedition. If any delay is anticipated payment should then be made out of an advance to be obtained for the purpose and the advance account closed as quickly as possible after payment.

18. 3.4. Unpaid wages:- This should be dealt with as provided in para 44 of K.P.W.A. Code.

18 3.4 Control of execution

The total labour employed on a work should be suitably spilt among gangs or groups and the work of one or more gangs or groups should be properly directed and supervised by a subordinate posted for this purpose. Such subordinates should be given instructions by the Junior Engineer, of the work to be performed each day by the labour under is charge. At convenient interval; say once or twice every week, the process of the work should be checked by the Junior Engineer to find out whether there is any redundancy or insufficiency of labour in any particular item of work and if so he should arrange to correct the imbalance. Similarly any hold- up are observed due to lack of any materials, tools, or plant or facilities like gang way etc, then the Junior Engineer should arrange to set light the defect urgently. Measurements of the work taken at the time of ensure of the N.M.R. will also give indication whether the overall performance is satisfactory or not, as in the estimate. The Assistant Engineer must keep watch of this and if the work is being done at rates higher than those provided for in the estimate, he should try to identify the cause of this process and take corrective steps to the extent possible. If in spite of such ports, the cost is found higher than what is provided in the estimate, the next should be reported to the Eecutive Engineer explaninng the reason for the excess and the corrective steps taken by the Assistant Engineer to keep be cost within the estimate. On receipt of such reports, the Executive Engineer should investigate whether any other step should be taken to reduce the cost and if so arrange for the same. If in spite of all these the cost cannot be reduced, the authority sanctioning the estimate should be informed and steps taken to revise the estimate.

LIBRARY ARCHIVES Kerala Legislative Assembly

The quality control aspect of the work should also receive careful consideration and no relaxation should be made.

18 4.2 over-time work should be avoided as far as possible. If however, this is unavoidable, the minimum number of workers absolutely and necessary should be so employed . The general labour regulations regarding over-time work should be strictly observed.

18 4.3. Labour not required for the work should be progressively retrended as and when their services are no longer required. One month's allowance may be given workers who have worked for 240 days in a year. The workers who have worked for 240 days in a year are also entitled for certain previlege such as leave with wages, retrenchment benefit etc. The concerned labour rules in force from time to time should be adhered to.
